Last year, I bought a new home.

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE...

...A BRAND NEW HOUSE ...

AND BEST OF ALL, MY BELOVED FIANCÉE...

FRESH WHITE WALL-PAPER.

THE PLEASANT SCENT OF NEW CON-STRUC-TION...

SPAR-KLING CLEAN FLOORS.

OR A CAT PERSON ?

ARE YOU A DOG PERSON ?

WHAT IS IT, A-KO ?

J-KUN.

...BUT CATS ARE THE BEST.

OH, WELL, DOGS ARE ALL WELL AND GOOD...

...A HAM-STER PER-SON.

WHY, THAT'S A SUDDEN QUES-TION. HEE HEE... WELL, IF I HAD TO CHOOSE, I'D SAY I'M...

hee hee hee.

THE DOG IS MAN'S BEST FRIEND, HIS FAITHFUL COM-PANION, WHOSE DEVOTION IS SO MOVING IT CAN DRIVE A MAN TO TEARS...

IN TRUTH, I'M A DOG GUY.

LAH LAH LAH ...

WHAT ?

YOU CAN PUT IT TOGETHER NOW.

LOOK, J-KUN, THE CAT TOWER ARRIVED.

DELIVERY!

YON ...

WHAT DO YOU MEAN? REMEMBER HOW I SAID I'M BRINGING YON OVER FROM MY PARENT'S HOUSE IN CHIBA?

WHY WOULD YOU BUY THAT?

C... CAT TOWER ?

...I MET YON ...

YON...OF COURSE. A FEW MONTHS AGO, WHEN I VISITED A-KO'S PARENTS' HOME FOR THE FIRST TIME...

YON'S GOING TO BE SO LONELY ON HIS OWN.

Question for you, J-SENSEI!

Question 1:

I understand you're the vice-chairman of your local town council. I hope you'll draw a side story for Yon & Mu called "The Vice-Chairman's a Horror Artist?!" By the way…what exactly does a town council vice-chairman do?

Answer:

Mostly, I just do accounting—making arrangements to gather council funds at the end of the month and managing income. I'm actually rather poor at calculating, so I have to be careful not to make mistakes. And as the chairman's assistant, I help out with town events and ceremonies. Recently, the council had a new year's party, and acting as the chairman's coordinator was a very busy job.

Question for you, J-SENSEI!

Question 2:

I've read that right after your debut as a manga artist, you had your mother and older sister help you with some work as assistants. Are the rumors true that they were even better at filling-in blacks than you?

Answer:

When I let them handle that task, they actually did it better than me. I'm particularly bad at pasting screentones, so my mother and sister would do a better a job. Now it's my wife and mother who help out.

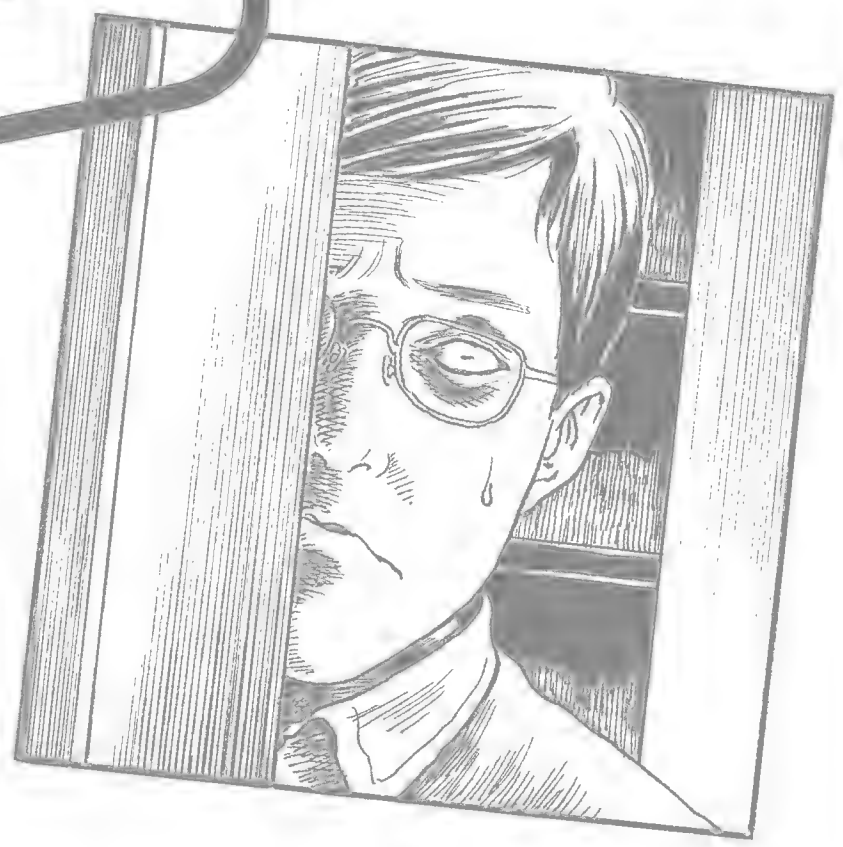
Question for you, J-SENSEI!



Question 3:

Have you ever used your prior experience as a dental tecŸi-cian in your manga work? I really got a sense of your skill from how well you make your plaster figures (for sketching human forms).

Answer:

The job of a dental tecŸician is to create objects that will be placed in the patient's mouth. Therefore, dentures and the like must be made smooth as to not damage the mouth. When creating manga, I sometimes fashion tools by hand and put my skills as a tecŸician to use. I make my tools very smooth.

Question for you, J-SENSEI!

Question 4:

I hear that Yon & Mu has gotten quite a response from your family. What kind of feedback did you get?

Answer:

My wife gave me plenty of guidance about the personalities of the cats. She's also commented on my storyboards for me. My mother said, "It's quite a funny manga." My sister put in a request to include her longhair cat, Ran-chan (full name: Ran Purahachi Daruma Tsuchinoko Bandit Katsushin), into the manga, but there wasn't really space for it. Sorry.

We quickly ran outside and looked around the house...

BY THE TIME I NOTICED, I SAW YON LEAPING FROM THE ROOF TO THE TOP OF THE FENCE.

There's a dangerous highway nearby, and there's also the possibility of catching diseases from local stray cats.

VRRRMM

We never let our cats go outside.

PROWW

THAT WAY, YON CAN RETURN ANYTIME.

KEEP MU CONFINED TO THE BEDROOM UPSTAIRS AND LEAVE THE FRONT DOOR OPEN!

Thankfully, I didn't find Yon's body!

Next, I headed to the rice paddies.

I returned home on occasion, but there'd been no news of Yon's return.

At some point, a local plumber joined the search.

She recalled the advice of some cat-finding expert.

CATS DON'T TRAVEL VERY FAR. HE'LL BE HIDING SOMEWHERE IN THE NEIGHBOR-HOOD...

While we were expanding our search radius, A-ko was employing a different plan of action.

IT HAS TO BE THE PLUMBER'S STORE-HOUSE!!

WHAT ARE SOME GOOD HIDING SPOTS NEAR OUR HOUSE...?

Question for you, J-SENSEI!

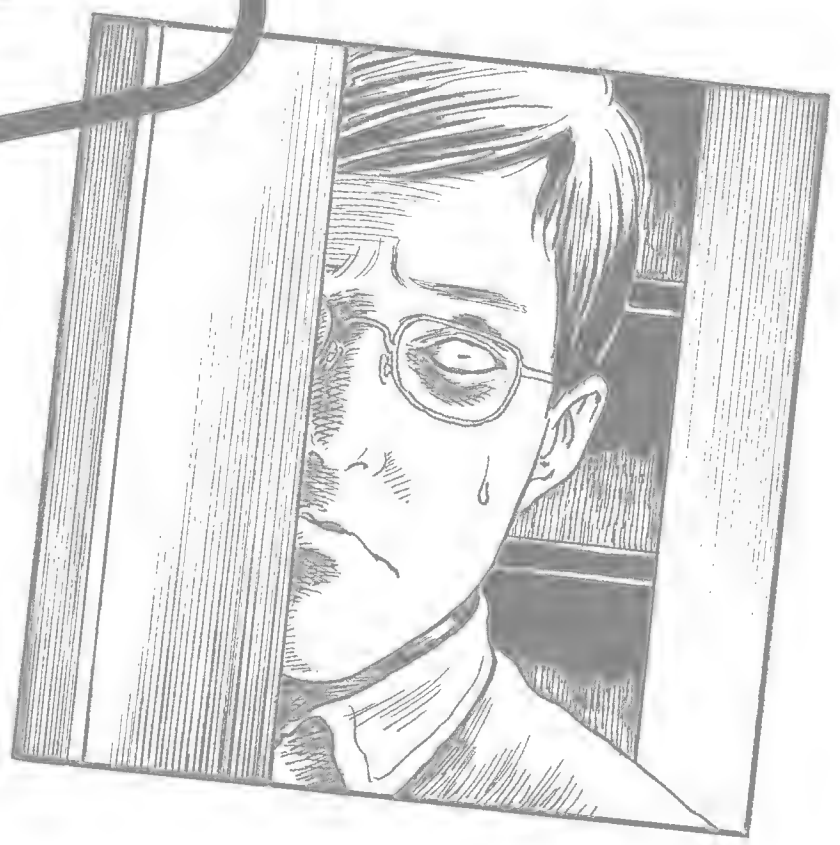
Question 5:

You draw A-ko's eyes almost entirely without pupils. What does your wife think of this?

Answer:

She got mad at me. It seems that she doesn't like the haircut, either. I've also been instructed to remove unnecessary lines from her cheeks in a number of panels. Additionally, she pointed out that A-ko's trademark striped pants are nowhere to be found in her personal wardrobe. Aside from these minor issues, my wife does not seem particularly displeased with this manga.

Question for you, J-SENSEI!



Question 6:

When you drew cats in your older works, they were quite scary. But in one of your manga, you drew a cat in a very cute way, and it seemed to catch the essence of a cat very well, so your cat-loving editor thought, "Aha! He's got a pet cat now," and forced you to draw a cat-centric manga. Have you been converted from a dog person to a cat person?

Answer:

Yes, I might be a cat person now. When I was a kid, the stray cats on the street corners looked mean and creepy to me, but when you actually live with one, the look in their eyes becomes familiar and adorable. Just as I was realizing that living with cats gives you lots of funny anecdotes and might be worth turning into a manga, my editor brought me this opportunity. I was in awe at my editor's keen insight.

OH... THAT'S JUST GORO.

YOU SAID THERE WAS "SOMETHING" HERE, SO I THOUGHT YOU WERE TALKING ABOUT COCKROACHES.

HE PROBABLY CAME CLOSER WHEN YOU WERE IN THE BATHROOM BECAUSE HE THOUGHT YOU WERE FATHER.

HE'S VERY TIMID AND CAUTIOUS, SO HE BARELY EVER SHOWS HIMSELF TO UNFAMILIAR PEOPLE.

...I'M GOING TO BE FRIENDS WITH GORO!!

WELL, IF THAT'S THE CASE...

WHAP

ACTUALLY, NOW I REMEMBER THAT YOU MENTIONED THERE BEING A CAT NAMED GORO AT YOUR FAMILY HOME.

OH... SO THAT'S IT...

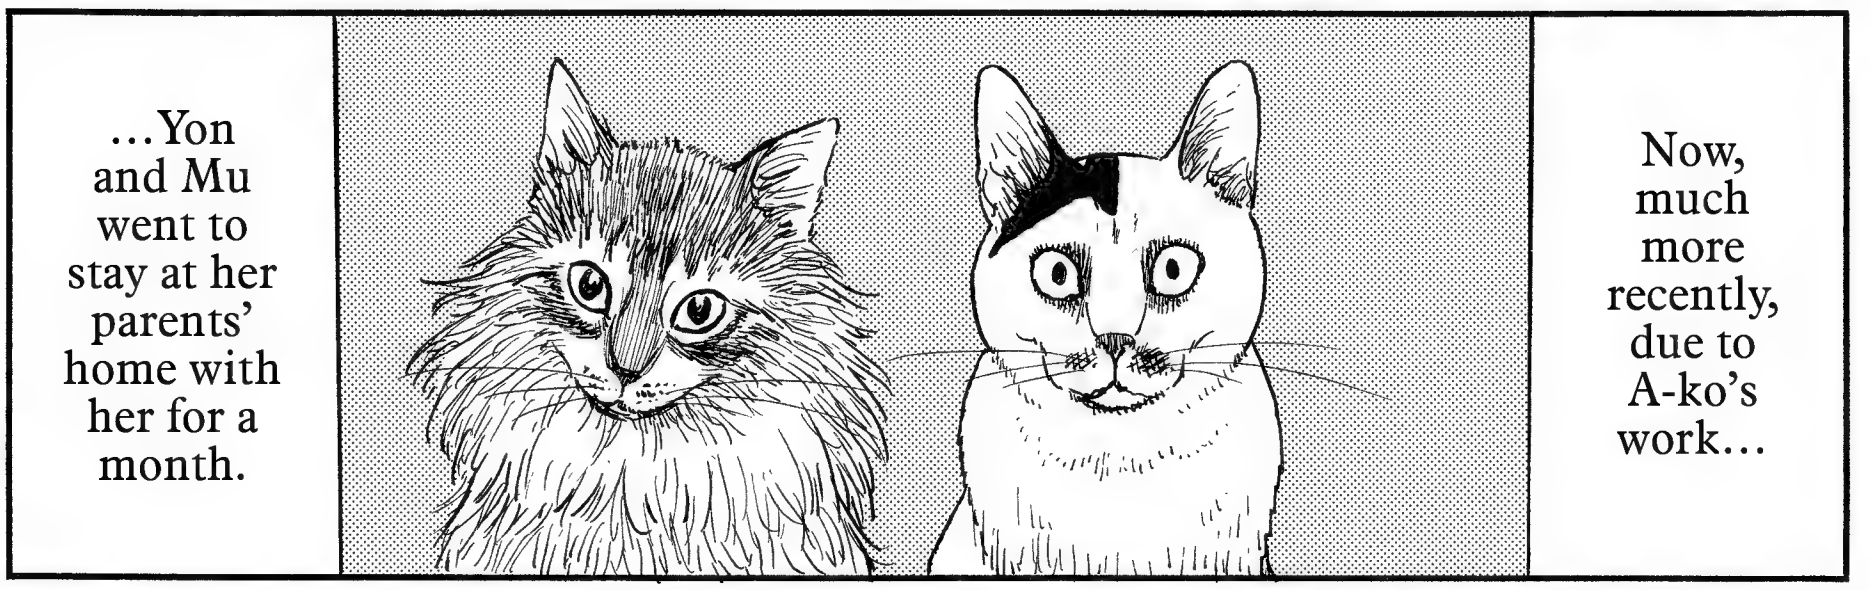
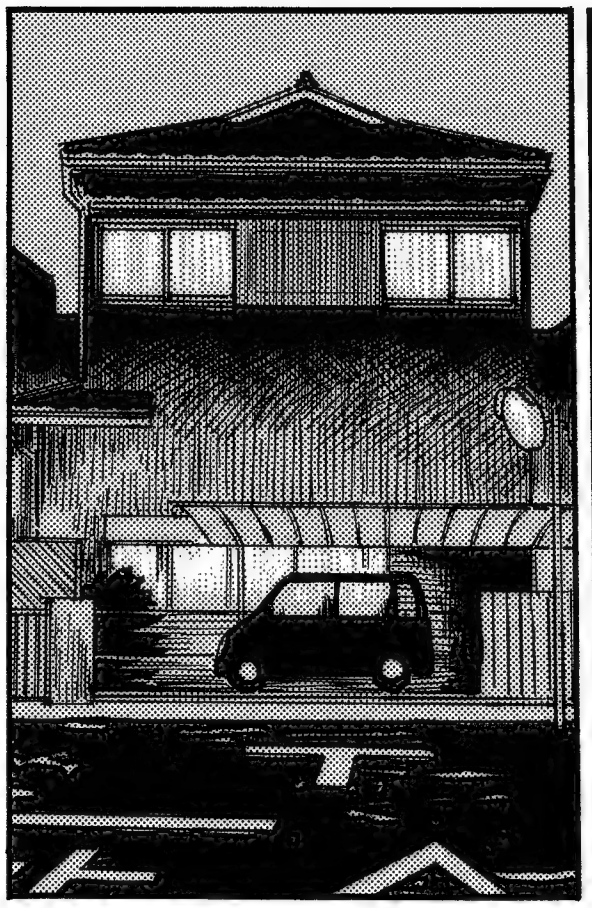
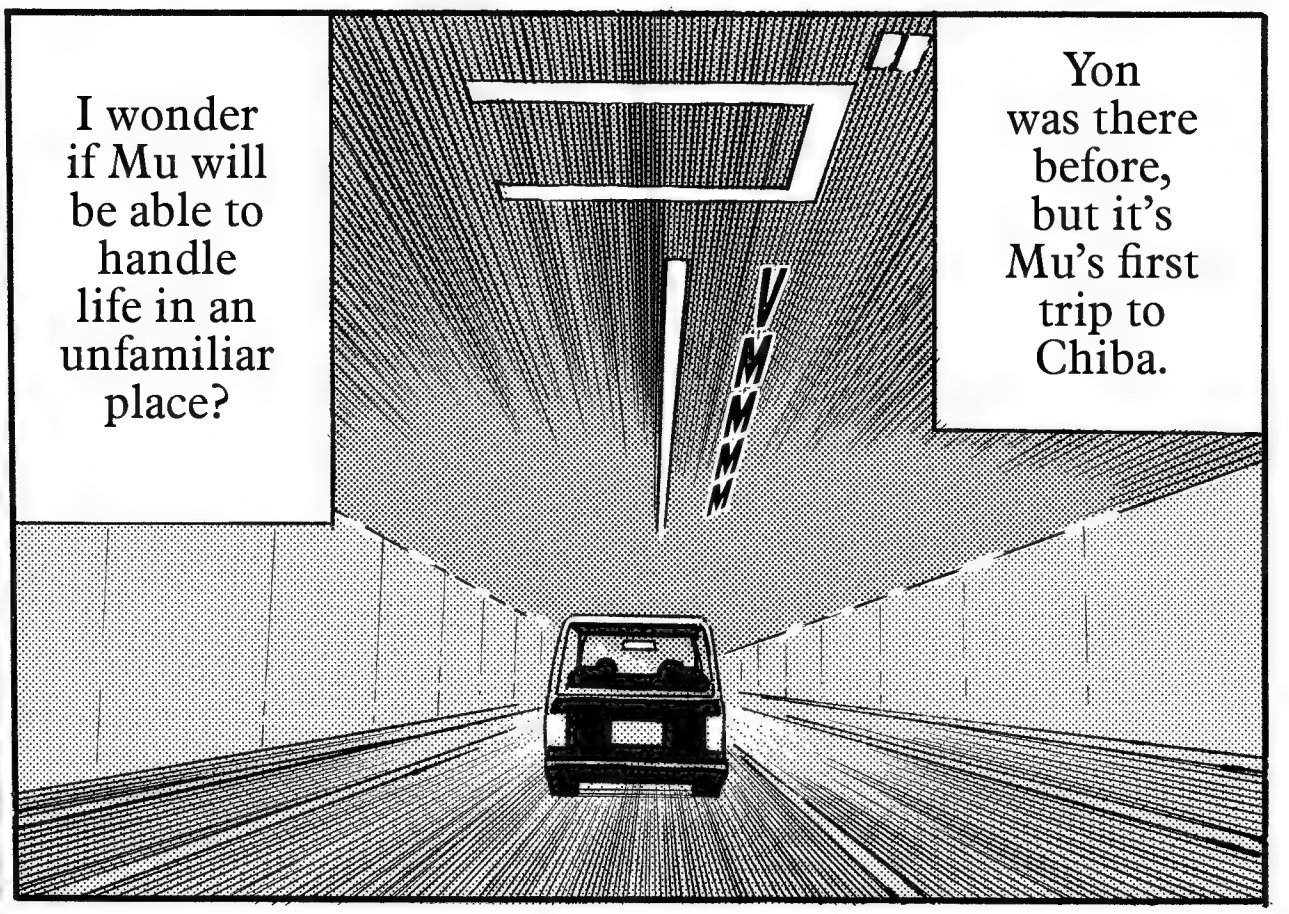
It's been over a year since then ...

GORO-CHAN! GORO-GORO-GORO-CHAN!
COME ON OUT, GORO ...



...Yon and Mu went to stay at her parents' home with her for a month.
Now, much more recently, due to A-ko's work...





I wonder if Mu will be able to handle life in an unfamiliar place?
Yon was there before, but it's Mu's first trip to Chiba.
VMMMM

I was satisfied and left feeling reassured.

Surprisingly, Mu adapted to A-ko's family home right away.

Question for you, J-SENSEI!

Question 7:

You are now known as a horror manga artist, but is it true that before your professional debut, you were more of a gag manga artist?

Answer:

When I drew for fun, I did both horror and comedy. I had a number of original characters who made quite a splash in my old grade-school comics: Big Dummy, Pose-Man, Little Dummy, and various other hits. Lots of my serious horror works would also start getting boring to me partway through, and would then turn comical in the latter parts.

Question 8:

This year (2009) is your 22nd as a manga artist. What are your goals for your 25th anniversary?

Answer:

I'll just keep taking things one day at a time, like I always have. But if I had to say one concrete goal, it would be to make a manga out of a novel that I wrote once for a video game. I hope my readers will continue to read my works.

Questions: Editor I-buchi Answers: Author Junji Ito Date: January 2009

After getting married, J and A-ko moved into a secondhand home in the same city along with their cats. It was an eccentric home, with an atrium-style living room, a large, sooty wood stove, and a very wide staircase like on a stage from a Takarazuka theater.

An atrium-style living room in this chilly, mountainous region is just the sort of layout that calls for the installation of a wooden stove. But J had no idea how to handle a wood stove. Plus, it would be dangerous to have cats leaping up onto it, and there are concerns that their children could get burned if they were to have any. Ultimately, they decided to scrap the wood stove.

When they called a wood stove vender to ask how it should be disposed of, the vendor said he would visit to show them how to use it.

"No, no, I just want to get rid of it," J repeated. But the vendor pointed out that such stoves were lifetime fixtures worth 700,000 yen (approx. $7,000 US), and cost 100,000 (approx. $1,000 US) to take out, so why not use it just once and see what you think?

A few days later, an elderly tecŸician came out and fixed a few broken parts without being asked, sprayed the sooty exterior black and made it look good as new. He tossed in some wood and lit it with a piece of newspaper.

The wood began to crackle pleasantly, and the room was soon full of warmth.

"A wood stove emits infrared light, so it warms you up from inside. After a good session around a wood stove, I can shovel snow outside for two hours without getting cold."

The elderly man seemed to be really into stoves. He plopped down happily right in front of it.

"People who love wood stoves all sit in a circle around the front of the heater and talk," he laughed. "And the top of the stove can be used to cook, so it's a hit with the ladies."

He added more wood, pleased that A-ko seemed to be taking an interest. J gave voice to one of his concerns. "We do have cats, though…"

Yon and Mu had hidden upstairs when the old fellow showed up.

"Ha ha ha. Cats don't jump up on the stove; they're too smart. I've been dealing with wood stoves for decades, and I've never once heard of a cat jumping on top of one. Huh? You're worried about kids getting burned? Ha ha ha. Well, they sell proper fences to keep them away. If you end up needing one, I can order it right away."

As the old man talked, the stove fire started to burn ever brighter, and the room was filled with a nostalgic, woody scent and comforting warmth.

Ultimately, J and A-ko decided to use the stove, and purchased a hundred bundles from the old man for the winter. Each bundle cost 500 yen (approx. $5 US), adding up to 50,000 yen (approx. $500 US) in total.

That day was the start of their wood stove life. J had never imagined that he would grow accustomed to using such a thing.

"With this new skill, I could keep warm anywhere, even in a shack during the middle of winter," J thought secretly, pleased with himself despite the fact that he had no intention of becoming a mountain-climber.

One morning, J got up late as usual and walked down to the living room, where A-ko grumbled, "Yon jumped up on the stove this morning."

"What?!"

"It was just after the last embers from yesterday went out, so it wasn't hot enough to burn him, but it must still have been pretty hot, because he danced around for a second before jumping right back off."

J imagined Yon dancing on top of the metal stove.

There was no way to tell if the old man had lied or if Yon was just a really dumb cat.

Just as J had always suspected, the wood stove was a costly item. A day's worth of wood cost at least 1,500 yen (approx. $15 US). They started to cut back, so as not to lose too much money, switching over to a gas stove for heating. In the end, they never used the wood stove to boil or cook anything, and it was sold, along with the leftover logs, to a friend who owned a bar.

TRANSLATION NOTES

Page 3: Building a house in Japan
In the United States and other Western countries, it is typical to purchase a used house, but in Japan, this is relatively uncommon. In many cases, a family saves money with the goal of building a new house rather than purchasing an existing one.

Page 10: Yon and Mu
The word "yon" is one of the ways to say "four" in Japanese. Goro means "fifth son," and "mu" is one of the ways to say "six."

Page 39: Semi-double
A bed size that is uncommon outside of Japan. Whereas a twin size bed is usually 90 cm wide (approx. 35.4 cm) a semi-double is 120 cm (approx. 47.2 cm).

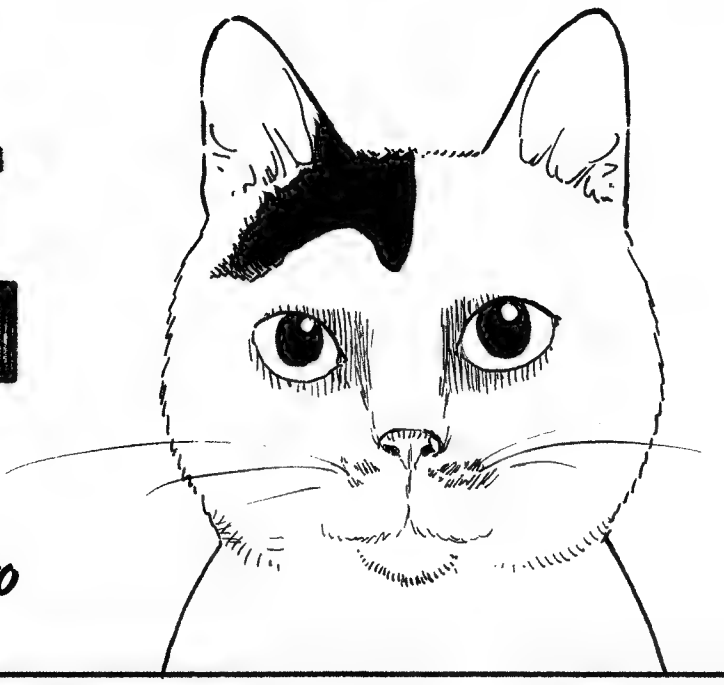
Page 52: Tsuchinoko
A legendary Japanese creature (cryptid) that resembles a very wide snake, or possibly a legless alligator. The tsuchinoko is said to be quite venomous and is able to jump several feet in the air.

BONUS MANGA

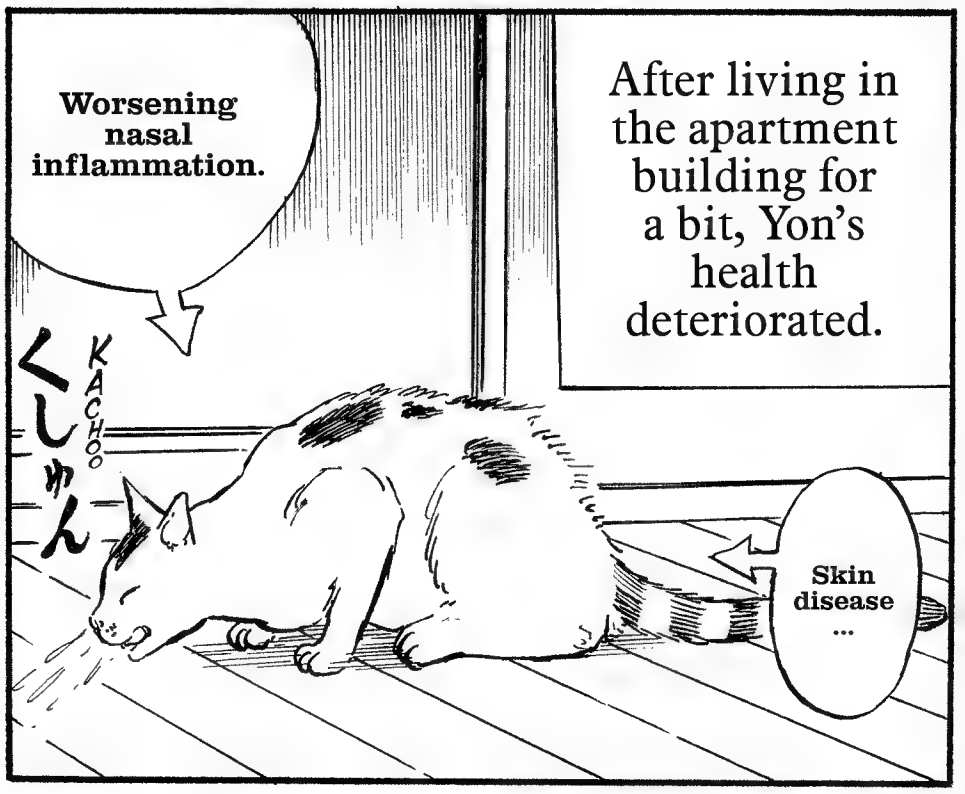
Kodansha Comics is pleased to bring you special bonus material for the English language edition of Junji Ito's Cat Diary: Yon & Mu. On the following pages are a short comic and letter penned respectively by J-kun (Junji Ito) and his wife, A-ko (Ayako Ishiguro). In Japan, they were published as contributions to a book created in support of cat shelters following the Great Tohoku Earthquake of 2011. The Japanese title of the original book is Maikeru Oshiete! Hisai Neko Ouen no Kyoukasho (Teach Me, Michael! A Textbook in Support of Feline Disaster Victims).

YON & MU

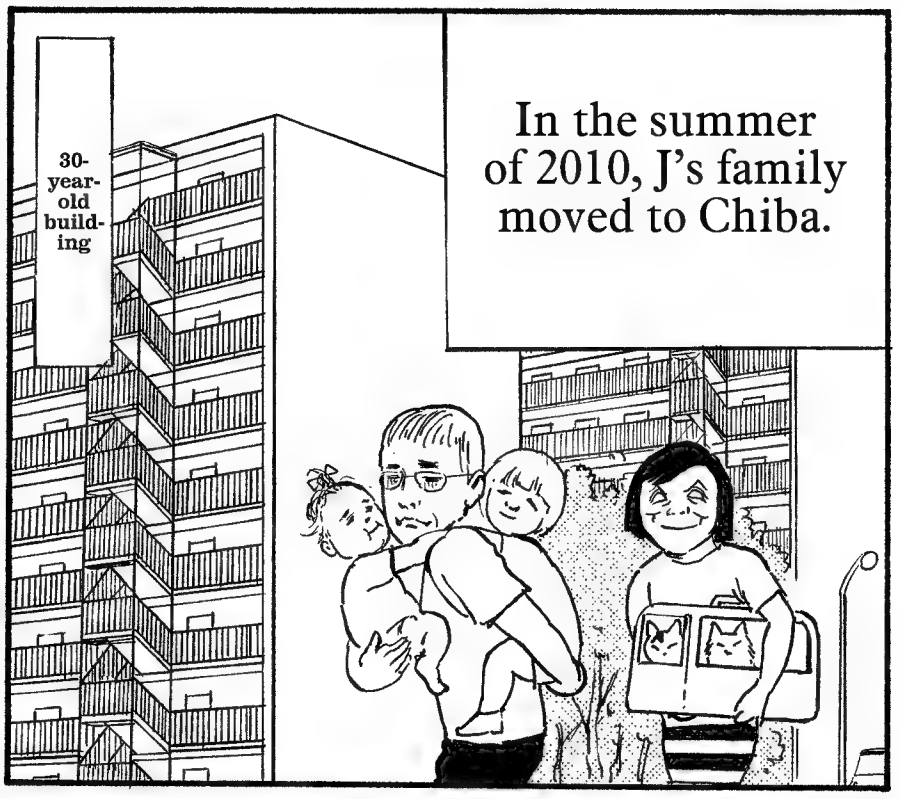
YON WENT TO HEAVEN



Junji Ito



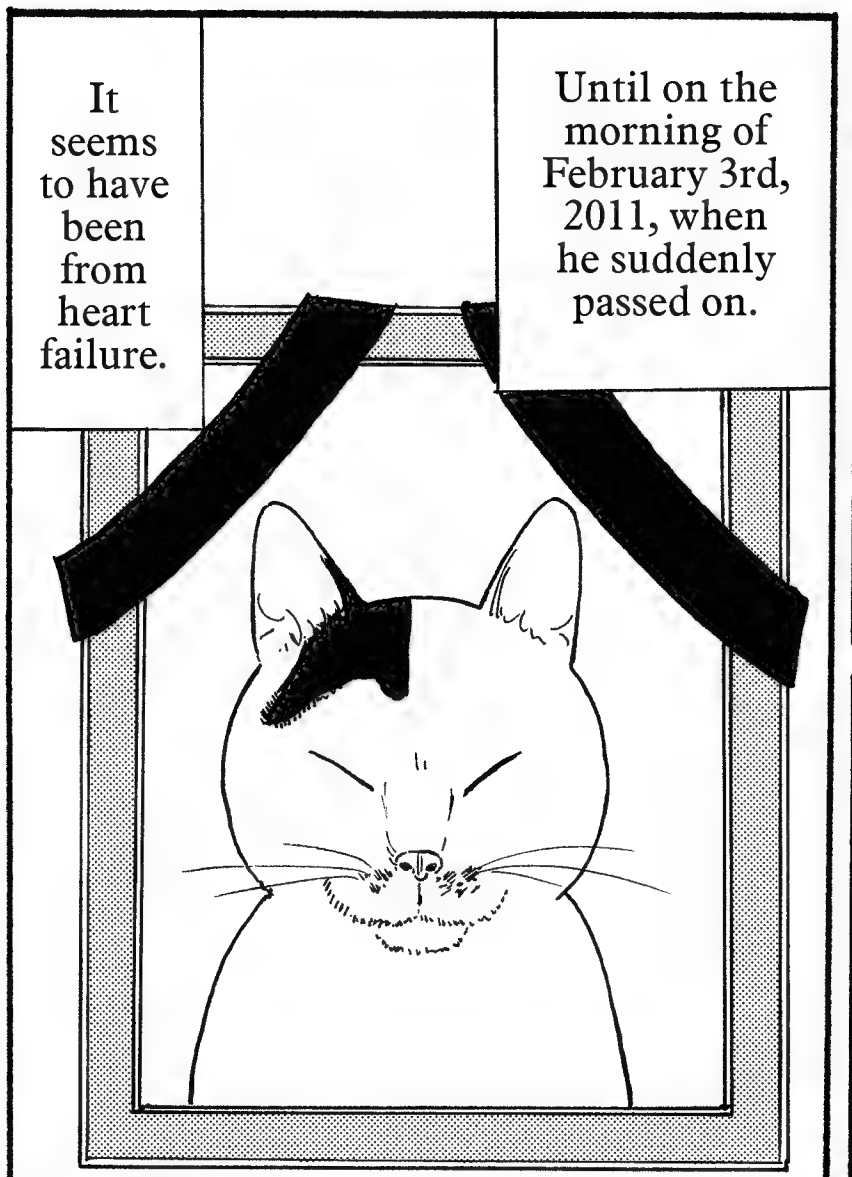
After living in the apartment building for a bit, Yon's health deteriorated.



In the summer of 2010, J's family moved to Chiba.

It seems to have been from heart failure.

Until on the morning of February 3rd, 2011, when he suddenly passed on.



A-ko did everything she could think of, to no avail.

The shaking was terrible, but Yon's remains were fine.

A-ko and I rushed outside... When the rumbling stopped, she bolted to her parents', where our kids were.

I quickly went inside to get Mu, who was hiding in the bedroom.

The End

As J's manga showed, Yonsuke up and died on us. For a while, he wandered around my legs, until eventually he realized, "Oh? I don't feel any pain anymore, and my body is light and breezy. I can go anywhere!" And so he flew away, over the horizon.

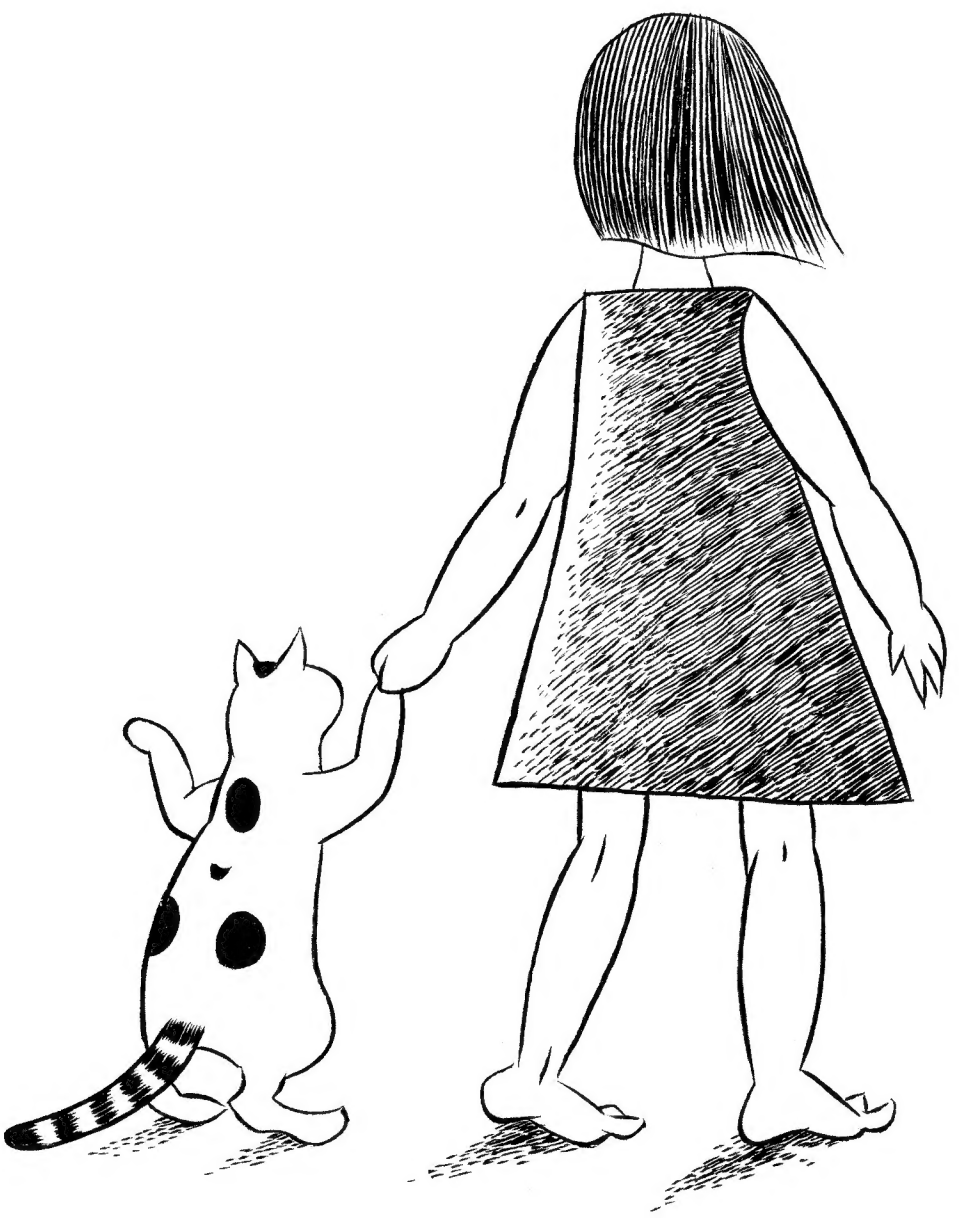
The next morning, I carried Yonsuke out onto the veranda, where we spent our last moment together. I put my pinky to his mouth, but he didn't suckle anymore. I was saddened by the sight of his firmly shut eyes and mouth, and I cried again.

By the end of the day, Yonsuke's remains were cremated.

I kept crying, over and over, and it was the first time I had seen J, who was right next to me, cry like that. I'm sure that if Yonsuke was there to see, he would meow with his eyes wide and rub against us, wondering what could make two grown adults behave like that. He would be helping us feel better by telling us not to cry, because it was annoying him.

"It's a wonderful thing for stuff to just be normal, don't you think?"

That was a quote a friend of mine said to me so many times, it got stuck in my brain. Those words really made sense to me after Yonsuke died. Shortly afterward, the great earthquake on 3/11 caused terrible upheaval. I was truly thankful that the people I care about were able to continue their lives the same as before. And hey, at least Yonsuke didn't have to undergo such a terrifying ordeal.



Yonsuke was the star of our household, even in manga form. No matter how creepy his face was, he was my precious little baby. Thank you for supporting me, no matter how useless I was at times.

I miss you each and every day, Yonsuke!
